

Conferences on Ayurveda and Siddha medicines

A conference on alternate medicines, herbals and green plants, and Siddha medicines which originates from South India will be held in Malaysia. The Tradalth Convention will take place from August 18-20 and its main focus will be on Ayurveda and Siddha medicines and therapists, said Sri Guruji Foundation of Malaysia.

Following the convention, the foundation aims to establish a training programme in Malaysia through a tie-up with SVYASA Yoga University of Bangalore. The convention will have three conferences on alternate medicines, herbals and green plants, and Siddha medicines which originate from southern India. It will also address the use of Malay and Chinese medicines. The convention is being supported by the Malaysian Health Ministry and the Indian High Commission in Kuala Lumpur, said the foundation representative Ramachandran Meyappan.

Malaysia has also started sending more and more students for healthcare courses at colleges and universities in India, as per the two governments' understanding. Currently, most of the Ayurveda and Siddha clinics and centres are run by professionals from Kerala and Tamil Nadu.
